

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When an A service provided by an A service provider is accompanied by the use of an accounting service provided by an accounting service provider, an A service proxy object and accounting service proxy object are acquired. Client information is set in the acquired accounting service proxy object, and the accounting service proxy object holds it. The client information is transferred to the A service provider via the A service proxy object. The A service provider uses the service of the accounting service provider by using the accounting service proxy object which holds the user information.